Define Problem Statements (Customer Problem Statement Template):

Travel planning and content creation often take a lot of time and effort because they require continuous research and personalization. Many individual travellers find it difficult to create customized travel itineraries that match their interests and trip duration, which can be confusing and frustrating. In the same way, travel agencies struggle to quickly prepare personalized itineraries for multiple clients due to repetitive manual work. Travel websites and content creators also face challenges in regularly producing engaging and updated travel content. These difficulties create a need for an intelligent and automated solution. The Explore with AI system addresses these challenges by using generative AI to automatically generate personalized travel itineraries and relevant travel content with minimal manual effort.
